Fun With Maps

Tuesday, January 16, 2018

6:30 pm – 8:30 pm

From Plat Maps to Historic depictions of trails through the Appalachians, Maps are one of the most valuable tools we use in researching our ancestors. They can prove where those folks were and certainly can prove where there were not.

We will look at lots of maps, do a little group activity and even take a short quiz – all to help you advance your research while looking at Marcia’s favorite works of art – MAPS.

Marcia Murray Holstrom started her genealogy research in 1975 when she wrote a nice long letter to a County Clerk asking for her father’s death certificate. She received her M.A. in Geography from SJSU where she then taught. She taught Geography at DeAnza and Genealogy in the Adult Education Programs in San José then Campbell. She has been a member of the SCCHGS for many years and currently serves as the Chair of the Pioneer Society, a lineage society for long time residents of Santa Clara County.
