Census 101: An Introduction to Searching the US Federal and State Censuses

Class will be taught by Dave McCready and Pam Fujii

February 22, 2019, 1:00 - 4:30 pm

Registration Closes: February 20, 2019

Census records are among the most rich and rewarding family history records available. Depending on which census your ancestor is in, you can learn where he or she lived at a particular place or time, learn his or her place of birth, what he or she did for a living, how many times they were married and other bits of valuable information. Each census is a little different than the previous census. In this class you will learn what information is available on each census record. Using this knowledge you can find census information to advance your search for your ancestors.
