and Genealogical Society presents

Saving Big Basin: The Beginning of the Environmental Movement

By Traci Bliss

Tuesday, November 19, 2024
6:30-8:30 pm PST on Zoom

Discover the incredible story of how a group of visionary environmental activists, many from Santa Clara County, saved the Big Basin redwood forest from 19th-century timber harvesting. These valiant men and women fought against the odds to preserve the primeval forest, setting a precedent for the entire state park system.

Drawing from her acclaimed book, "Big Basin Redwood Forest: California's Oldest State Park," the first accurate history of the park's founding, award-winning Emerita Professor Traci Bliss will provide fascinating insights into this pivotal moment in environmental conservation.

Our meetings are free and open to the public.
