Problems With Accuracy

Ages are always suspect people are secretive some couldn't remember how old they were rough ideas of age were given

Competency of Enumerators

Not necessarily well educated or qualified for the job

Poor penmanship

Got the job from connections, not merit

Low wages

Problems With Accuracy

Language Barriers

U.S. has always been home to a large number of immigrants, and those who do not speak English

Names were misunderstood, misspelled and thus difficult or impossible to find in indexes

Pfeiffer could easily become Fifer

Menkalski was interpreted as McKalsky by an Irish Census taker in Cleveland in the 1920 Census

A significant portion of the American population could not read or write in the nineteenth century so misspellings stayed that way.
